

JOURNALISTS' QUOTES ABOUT MONT SUTTON

“ Mont SUTTON is one of the world’s greatest ski areas. ” ( Patrick Thorne, In the Snow Magazine, December 2010)

“Sutton’s charm lies in the fact that there’s no one set way down the 54 runs on the mountain. Instead you’ll find yourself slipping in and out of the trees, taking a different trail down each time, making for an infinite variety of experiences every time. Indeed this is what sets SUTTON apart : the trails follow the true fall line of the mountain, and the natural contours of the slopes!” ( Ilona Biro, AOL Travel Canada, March 2011)

.....

“A pastoral mountain in Quebec’s Eastern Townships, it’s exceptional for its glade skiing, great prices and major moguls. With 40-per-cent of its terrain carved through snow-tipped birches, hemlocks and maples, SUTTON is a unique experience where skiing meets nature.” ( Adam Bisby, Toronto Star, March 2011)

.....

“SUTTON, it’s SUTTON. Sure there is nice spring skiing at other stations, but never like at SUTTON. It’s not your up and down on groomed trails. The trails often unpredictable with curvy and just narrow enough in the glades are unique and offer a unique pleasure!” ( Roger Laroche, Le Carnet du Ski, March 19th, 2010)

.....

“The first thing that catches your eyes when you arrive at Mont SUTTON, is the snow!” ( La Voix de l’Est, March 27th, 2010)

.....

“Best-looking-50-year-old : Not a wrinkle in sight at Mont SUTTON – only gorgeous glades and Eastern powder coming out of its yinyang.” ( Ski Canada Magazine, winter 2010)

.....

“If only winter could last 12 months a year! Great conditions, charming setting, exciting glades with a friendly staff! Mont SUTTON, is an exceptional mountain offering lots of fun time after time... I'm intentionally dependent of Mont SUTTON!!!” ( Geneviève Gagné, radio host, NRJ 106.1, winter 2010)

.....

[...] everytime, it's magic : the beauty of the site, the quality of the snow, the kind of old setting, everything to make a visit at Mont SUTTON an amazing visit. We can practice our favourite sport in ideal snow conditions. Thank you to all the Mont SUTTON's team.”
(Yves Desautels, Société Radio-Canada, April 29th, 2010)

.....

“Imposing with its summit with an altitude close to 1000 meters, Mont SUTTON offers several different landscaping that we can admire.” (Alain Demers, Le Journal de Montréal, September 29th, 2009)

.....

“Since 1960, the ski station has developed a glade concept in a unique environment of the Eastern Townships, and its reputation is well known all around Canada.” (La Voix de l'Est, November 26th, 2009)

.....

“The skiable domain kept a retro style, particularly with its 4 wooden chalets. Mont SUTTON is known all through North America, because of the quality and the variety of its glades.” (Stéphane Champagne, La Presse, December 22nd, 2009)

.....

“I am anxious for the day where my son and I can discover together this mountain full of trails and glades. I am looking forward to the day where together we warm ourselves around the fireplace in the chalet at the top of chair IV, drinking a hot chocolate with marshmallow. I am also looking forward to the day where the two of us go for a cold beer on the deck of the Tucker bar after a long day of Spring skiing. Of course all of this can wait a few years. Sutton will without a doubt be one of our favorite play ground for years to come. ” (Sara-Maude Boucher, La Tribune, 5 mars 2010)Sara Maude Boucher

.....

“A trip through SUTTON's glades and you'll immediately be taken back to a simpler, more romantic time. Its woods, chock-full of eastern ski charm, clearly set this place apart, and there is really no one set way down the mountain. Instead, its trails slip in and out of trees, following the true fall line and natural contours of the slopes.”
(SBC Resort Guide, Annual 2009)

.....

“SUTTON has an immediate charm that many resorts claim. (...) You can switch between the 50 or so trails at dozens of different places, creating a vast number of different places, creating a vast number of different descent possibilities and an innate variety to enrich your experience on the slopes.” (Snow Traveler, The Independent, 2008)

.....

“Covered with five-and-a-half metres of natural snow on average every year, this spot is a gorgeous glade fest.” (Ski Canada Travel Guide, December 2008)

.....

.....

“SUTTON shines like a treasured family heirloom diamond. (...) Unpretentiously challenging and charismatic, it is. Understated, solid as that diamond, and offering a ski/ride experience that conveys the mountain’s personality and feel, it is and does.”
(Mitch Kaplan, Snoweast, November 2008)

.....

“Mt SUTTON is everything I like in a mountain: family-owned, parking close to the lifts (I hate lugging my skis), and hospitable lodges spread around the mountain. (...) Best of all, I like their philosophy that skiing is all about getting out the doors and close to nature. Begin with the revolutionary notion that glade skiing should be for everyone – even beginning ‘green’ level skiers and kids.” (Barbara Radcliffe Rogers, Luxury Travel Site, 2008)

.....

“SUTTON, where the hearts of skiers vibrate again, where snow is plentiful, where nature fills your eyes, where challenge lies in some trails and laughter takes holds of the soul. A day at SUTTON makes you feel the pleasures of skiing again... of real skiing.”
(L’Annuel Ski et Planche 2008)

.....

“While SUTTON’s glades get all the hype, its rolling hills, fun gullies and deep pockets of snow deserve some glory.” (SBC Resort Guide)

.....

“SUTTON has an immediate charm that many resorts claim, yet few are actually able to deliver...” (Patrick Thorne, 10 Essential Ski Resorts, Snow Traveller inserted in The Independent, UK newspaper)

.....

“Where better to ski in soft, welcoming snow than Sutton...” (Mitch Kaplan, On the Snow.com)

.....

“It’s the language, the food, and the sense of having stepped back in time. But, mostly, it’s the glades.” (Helen Jankoski, New Haven Register)

.....

“You can ski for days, even weeks, without taking the same run, from top to bottom, twice.” (Richard Weir, New York Daily News)

.....

“At SUTTON, there are no phonies, no snobs and definitely no artificial village. It’s a mountain, as pure as can be.” (Claudine Hébert, Ski Presse)

.....

“(SUTTON) Simple, functional, unaffected.” (Ian Merringer, Skier magazine)

.....

“The Fantaisie trail is considered one of the ten most beautiful downhill ski trails in Quebec.” (Michel Julien, La Presse)

.....

.....
“(SUTTON) One of Quebec’s most intriguing mountains, known for its extensive glades...” (Rochelle Lash, The Gazette)

.....
“SUTTON is a tree-skier’s paradise. The resort even grooms some of the glades in the hardwood forest, and riding the bumps through trees on the Surprise run is a real hoot. Hit Sutton on a powder dump, and magic happens.” (Dan Giesin, SFGate.com)

.....
“Still made of 40% glades, the centre has a personality that derives largely from its natural setting and the passion of its owners. A few kilometres away, the village itself has maintained an aura of authenticity and calm that must be the envy of many similar places. How has it managed to avoid for all these years the commercialization that blights so many other villages? Sutton’s town centre has been preserved and improved, and just doesn’t have that trampled shopping centre look when weekends come around.” (Normand Cazalais, Le Devoir)
